OBSEQUIES OF CHARLES SUMNER

The Last Tribute to the Dead Senator--New England's Most Eminent Sons Bear Him to Mount Auburn--"Earth to Earth, Ashes to Ashes, Dust to Dust."

BOSTON, March 16.—The obsequies of Senator Sumner took place at [illegible] after [illegible]. The remains were conveyed from the [illegible] Hall to the State House in a hearse drawn by four black horses, with a squad of mounted State constables. The procession included the Executive and Congressional authorities, Congressional Commissioners, United States officials at [illegible] authorities. The pall bearers were ex-Governors Claflin, Bullock, [illegible] and Washburne, [illegible] Banks, Robert C. Winthrop, [illegible] Francis Adams, J. G. Whittier and [illegible] Wall [illegible]. As the casket passed from the [illegible] the Dead March from Saul. The procession was preceded by four mounted [illegible], composed of Calla lilies, lilies of the valley [illegible] and other choice flowers. At the base wrought in white violets were the words "A tribute from his native city and home." At the church a prelude was given on the organ. Rev. Mr. [illegible] read the passage "I am the resurrection and the life," etc., and "I know that my Redeemer liveth." The choir sung "To Thee Oh Lord I yield my spirit," followed with alternate reading and chanting. The benediction was then pronounced and the cortege moved to Mount Auburn, where after the ritual of the Lord's Prayer and music from the Apollo Club the last sad rites were performed over the remains of the honored son of Massachusetts.

Funeral Honors Paid in all Parts of Massachusetts--Action of the Colored Citizens in Various Parts of the Country

SPRINGFIELD, March 16.—In this city the bells were all tolled at [illegible] o'clock in honor of Sumner. At Holyoke a memorial service was held, business being generally suspended. At Worcester [illegible] the stores were closed. Throughout Western Massachusetts generally the bells were tolled.

NEW YORK, March 16.—Dispatches from a number of Southern and Western cities state that the colored people appropriately noticed the death of Sumner.

The Successor to Charles Sumner--Henry L. Dawes the Foremost Candidate--Chas. Francis Adams Named.

NEW YORK, March 16.—Advices from Massachusetts indicate the probability that Dawes will be elected to succeed Sumner, notwithstanding the efforts to beat him by exciting the suspicion that he has been leagued with Butler.

The Tribune to-morrow will advocate the election of Charles Francis Adams in the place of Sumner. The Boston Advertiser favors Adams.

The Temperance Crusade in Chicago.

CHICAGO, March 16.—A delegation of 100 ladies from a large meeting in the Clark Street M. E. [illegible] Church marched this evening to the City Hall and presented to the Council a remonstrance against the repeal of the Sunday Saloon closing ordinance. The Council received the petition, but passed the repeal ordinance by a vote of 2[illegible] to 14. The defeated ladies then ran the gauntlet of a mob of bummers, who insulted, hooted and yelled at them all the way from the City Hall back to the church.

Union Pacific Railroad Matters.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—J. T. Wilson and several other Government directors of the Union Pacific Railroad had a conference with a committee of the House on the Pacific railroads yesterday on the Government interest in the road. The House committee will, without legislation, if possible, protect the Government's interest. The new directors appear to desire an amicable arrangement with the Government directors. A dispatch from the President of the road says the Company have taken possession of the Wyoming coal mines and hereafter will [illegible].

A bill [illegible] in the House to compel the Union Pacific to pro rata freights with the Kansas Pacific, was shown to be impracticable, as the western part of the Union Pacific cost twice as much per mile as the eastern. The committee will soon call on the Secretary of the Interior to confer in regard to the time fixed for declaring the completion of the road. At present the road lands are exempt from taxation though not patentable. While the Government officers are not pleased with the change in the management, they concede that the officers seem disposed to act fairly and enhance the value of the road.

THE TERRITORIES

Olympia ladies are moving in the temperance crusade business.

Freights from Toano to Boise City are [illegible] cents a pound, to Idaho City 6½ cents and to Rattlesnake Station 4 cents.

A gentleman from Nevada, with $1[illegible],000, is buying cattle in large numbers of the farmers in Walla Walla Valley.

Says the Owyhee Avalanche of March 7th: "Snow has fallen this week to a depth of about two and a-half feet—as much as during the entire winter heretofore. We now have about five feet of snow on the level, with fair prospects of considerable more, which makes our placer miners feel very good, indeed."

At the suggestion of S. M. Wait, Esq., Capt. J. C. Ainsworth has had the books of the O. S. N. Company examined, and reports that the shipments of sugar to Walla Walla county for the year 1873, foot up in round figures 1,500,000 pounds. At 10 cents per pound this importation of sugar aggregates $1[illegible],000. This is the trade of a single year, and a year too that was not particularly active.

At a railroad meeting in Tumwater last Saturday evening the following subscriptions were made toward the building of the Olympia Tenino Railroad: Mr. Cooper and employes $1,000 in material; Sam'l G. Ward, work and material $100; 17 Bellingham Bay lots and 200 acres of land on the Chehalis; [illegible] 20 acres of land. Other [illegible] offers were made. In all some $[illegible] in money, work and material were pledged [illegible] to the lands.

A letter from Payette [illegible] says: "We have had an unusual hard winter. There has been snow on the ground for about three months, part of the time about twelve inches deep, but at the present not more than six inches on an average. Stock [illegible] have been feeding for over six weeks, and most of them are about out of hay. If the snow lasts a while longer a great many cattle are bound to die, though very few have been lost as yet. On the opposite side of Snake river from here there are hundreds of antelope, which I understand are so poor that a person on horseback can ride on to them with ease."

Speaking of one Nartz, who had left a number of creditors in the lurch at Walla Walla, the Spirit of the West says: "Nartz asked for credit and the people gave it to him. While building? Here was reciprocity, if [illegible] here was the very essence of interchange of commodities. True in the one instance the [illegible] of exchange was cash and the other [illegible] jaw bone, but Nartz had an abundance of the latter article at [illegible] Who then had cause to complain? They did not complain—until last Saturday, when the [illegible] pensively dissolved in a [illegible] of imperturbable secrecy, departed for regions unknown, and connected irrevocably the remembrance of his debts with the aromatic fragrance of the [illegible] historic woodbine."

ANOTHER RESIDENCE.—Not the [illegible] The President has recently purchased a lot of ground containing nearly [illegible],000 square feet, and which fronts the circle at the intersection of P and Thirteenth streets and Vermont and Rhode Island avenues, and extends 13[illegible] feet along the latter and 143 feet along the former avenue. The price paid was $100 per square foot, amounting to $22,31[illegible]. On this lot the President proposes to erect a fine residence.—Washington Chronicle.

CALIFORNIA.

From San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO, March 1[illegible].—Weather pleasant to-day.

St. Patrick's birthday will be celebrated in grand style. The people are already thronging the streets and flags displayed in every quarter. The literary exercises after the parade will take place at the California Theater. [illegible]

The Council has been [illegible] by session of the fire department by the Sheriff last night. Whitney [illegible] certain papers in the case must be served [illegible] be found.

The O[illegible] arrived from San Diego at a late hour to-night. [illegible] sailed for the same destination to-day.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 17.—The weather remains very pleasant. The streets are thronged with people on the line of march of the procession, which will start at noon. There are a host of military and civic organizations already at the place of rendezvous on Folsom street.

The steamer Mikado from Sydney and Honolulu passing up the harbor.

Detective Himegas telegraphs from Navarro that he has arrested John Conway, postmaster at Gufley's Cove, for tampering with the U. S. mails.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 17.—The celebration of St. Patrick's Day was in every respect a grand success and highly creditable to our Irish fellow citizens. The military and civic societies, patriotic, reformatory and benevolent, were strongly represented, and all was conducted with spirit and good order. The literary exercises at the California Theater were very interesting. The poem by Robert Cobm was well written, well delivered and full of the inspiration of patriotism. The oration by P. M. Clarken, formerly of Sacramento, was an able production and its delivery elicited rounds of applause from the vast audience. To-night there will be several balls and festivities in honor of the day. The city has been quiet outside of excitement incident to the celebration.

The steamer Mikado brings news from Honolulu that Prince Kalakaua had been elected King to succeed Lunalilo.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 17.—All the civic balls and parties of Irish people to-night are well attended.

There have been many arrests to-night on the streets for drunkenness, but on the whole the city is very quiet.

Chief Scannell has assumed control of the fire department. The changes to be made are anxiously looked for by all firemen.

Thos. Brundy, Manuel Backus and Mrs. Moran died suddenly to-day.

The physicians attending Mrs. O'Connor and son, stabbed by Wm. Hanlon on Sunday night, say there are hopes of their recovery, their condition to-day being more favorable.

Interior California.

YREKA, March 17.—The cold weather seems to have broken. To-day has been the first clear and pleasant day we have had. The loss of cattle and sheep has been fearful. Probably one half of the stock in this county is dead. A letter from Linkville dated the 8th says the snow is 3 to 4 feet deep all over the country and still snowing. The cattle were dying fast, the sheep were nearly all dead and some horses. Jesse Applegate lost 150 head of cattle in one day. After freezing his feet badly he was obliged to abandon his herd to their fate, having lost 1,800 head, while the stock men suffer greatly.

The miners are jubilant over the prospect of plenty of water and a long summer's work. A large yield of gold is anticipated. Accounts from different mining camps represent that they have abundance of water, and many diggings are now being worked that have laid idle for years.

The workmen engaged in boring [illegible] King's artesian well sunk down 400 feet, where they struck another stream of water of six per cent. salt, which is now flowing 143,000 gallons per day through a 4½ inch pipe.

OAKLAND, Cal., March 17.—A special from Sacramento to-day to the Daily [illegible] says, in reference to relocating the county buildings, that Gibbons, Gerrett and Ameerman favor the Broadway Plaza bill—the building to be done by the Board of Supervisors, and that the bill without doubt will pass the Senate to-morrow. There is much rejoicing in Oakland over the event.

St. Patrick's day passed off very quietly here. All the Hibernian Societies went to San Francisco to celebrate the day there.

SACRAMENTO, March 17.—St. Patrick's day was celebrated with considerable enthusiasm by the Irish residents. At 10 o'clock A. M. the Sarsfield Guard, the Emmet Guard, the Ancient Order of Hibernians and the Hibernia Benevolent Society formed in procession at the Pavilion and marched to St. Rose Church with flags, banners and bands of music. The Church was densely crowded. After an impressive Mass, accompanied by excellent music, the procession again formed and marched through the principal streets to the Metropolitan Theater, which was packed from floor to ceiling with a brilliant audience. Dr. Dyrrell, President of the Day, made a stirring speech and introduced Albert Hart, the poet, who recited a splendid poem of his own composition on the death of O'Neil, the Wild Ulster Chief. Mrs. Fitch then read the celebrated battle piece of the Irish brigade at Fontenoy. P. P. McGowan read [illegible] O'Brien in good style, after which J. J. Murphy delivered an interesting oration, which was loudly cheered. The streets presented quite a lively appearance. The American and Irish flags have been displayed from a large number of buildings.

Josh Billings lectured to-night to a crowded house.

NEVADA.

AUSTIN, March 1[illegible].—A man named George Williams was killed in the engine shaft yesterday by falling from a 300 foot [illegible]. Deceased was a native of Maine, aged [illegible].

St. Patrick's Day was celebrated by a parade of the Irish societies, High Mass at [illegible] and [illegible] at the Catholic Church. It will be concluded by a grand ball to-night.

REV J F DEVORE'S VINDICATION

In the [illegible] of February [illegible] date of [illegible] 1874 [illegible] the above heading there appeared an article setting forth the proceedings and findings of the Church trial which resulted in the suspension of Rev. J. F. DeVore from all ministerial service and Church privileges until the coming Annual Conference. The writer—Bro. DeVore—asks his friends in Oregon and Washington Territory not to prejudge his case, but to [illegible] what he calls his "vindication," is simply asking the community to [illegible]. He presents to us some [illegible] which, coupled with the fact that weeks have elapsed and no reply has appeared, has induced many to suppose there is no reply to be made. But it is the law of [illegible] now, while "He that is first in his own cause seemeth just, his neighbor cometh and searcheth him." We ask the attention of the candid to a calm statement of facts that appear in connection with Bro. DeVore's vindication. He presents a series of complaints and protests.

1. I was arraigned in this city before an Ecclesiastical Court on the 4th [illegible] day of February, having received but [illegible] days notice of who my accuser was.

The impression which the above statement will make upon the mind of every disinterested and unsuspicious person is a false one, viz., that Bro. DeVore was called to trial on ten days' notice.

The truth is he was put in possession of the charge and specifications upon which he was tried full twenty days before the trial. The name of Rev. J. W. [illegible] as his accuser was not appended to the document until ten days before trial, but this incident did not make the least difference as to Bro. DeVore's recognition of the summons, nor in the time—twenty days—allotted him to prepare for trial, as is proved by the fact that the ten days before trial he made request in writing to have the trial postponed until the second Tuesday in April next.

Now if Bro. DeVore intended to make a false impression, he is of course guilty of moral falsehood, upon which I here express no opinion. An intelligent community will judge.

2. Rev. W. Roberts was Chairman and the Committee consisted of Revs. N. Doane, J. H. Allen, C. W. [illegible], W. Shaw, G. [illegible] Roe. Three of these were challenged for cause, but by some means they were all retained. His remark in the P. C. Advocate is: "Through my counsel I offered protests against three of the Committee, [illegible] but the Chair overruled about everything, and the examination proceeded." The impression which each of the above statements will inevitably make upon the mind of every disinterested and unsuspicious person is a false one, viz., that Bro. DeVore's challenge for cause of three members of the Committee was overruled by the Chair greatly to the injury of the accused party.

The truth is Bro. DeVore, after challenging three of the Committee, took the liberty to examine two of them and thereupon withdrew his challenge of them all, saying thereby that he had no objection to their serving.

If Bro. DeVore intended to make a false impression—either by concealing a part of the truth vital to an honest statement of the case, or in any other way, he is guilty of moral falsehood. I express no opinion. An intelligent community will judge.

3. Protests against the Presiding Officer [illegible] were overruled by the Chair and the examination was pushed through. In the Advocate—"I offered protests against the Presiding Officer, [illegible] but the Chair overruled about everything."

W. Roberts was [illegible] that could have legally presided in the trial of J. F. DeVore, [illegible] being the [illegible] adjoining [illegible] district to that of J. F. DeVore. The law upon the subject is: "If the accused be a presiding elder, three of the senior preachers of his district shall inquire into the character of the report, and if they judge it necessary, call in, to their counsel, the presiding elder of any adjoining district, who shall appoint a committee of five elders from within the bounds of the annual conference of which the accused is a member, and also preside at the examination."—Meth. Dis., p. 127.

If the case be considered anterior to the time the three senior preachers call in the presiding elder, they must judge it necessary either not to try the case, or W. Roberts must preside, because the law says "the presiding elder of an adjoining district shall appoint a committee" and "preside" in the examination.

If the case be considered subsequent to calling in the presiding elder, then there is no alternative. W. Roberts must preside in the case. The protest, therefore, against the presiding officer on the part of Bro. DeVore was entirely illegitimate, and it was the chair's duty to rule it out of order.

4. I protested against being tried off my own district, were overruled by the chair. The Advocate: "Against the place of trial." It was supposed it would be more accommodating to all parties better to try the case at the home of the accused than at any other place, especially as the [illegible] for investigation, about half the specifications [illegible] in Portland. That it was legal for the presiding officer to try the case off the district of the accused accords well with the following interpretation of discipline: "A presiding elder may appoint the place for the investigation of the case of an accused traveling preacher, including presiding elders, beyond the limits of his district, when in his judgment the circumstances demand it."

The foregoing section reads: "When a presiding elder is called to preside in the investigation of an accused presiding elder, he possesses the power" [illegible] investigating the case of an accused traveling preacher on his district.—Meth. Dis., p. 14[illegible], [illegible] of 18[illegible].

5. Protests against going to trial without [illegible] were overruled by the Chair. The accused was allowed full twenty days between citation and trial. This was deemed sufficiently long. We have no disciplinary rule regulating the length of time [illegible] Bro. DeVore [illegible] asking that the trial be postponed until the second Tuesday in April next, [illegible] Mr. Montgomery and Mr. Webster. What testimony Mr. Montgomery and Webster could give [illegible] be determined, but a correct [illegible] be made to [illegible] still in the [illegible] the above [illegible] Robert [illegible] as follows:

[illegible]

Very truly yours,
WILLIAM ROBERTS.

[illegible] the style [illegible] the charges and specifications. One of his counsel argued long and vehemently against the [illegible] [illegible] character, &c., &c. That the charges and specifications were not constructed and worded as perfectly in conformity to the [illegible] specimens of this kind of composition may perhaps be readily admitted. But it strikes me that the accused and counsel was his intent and hope to repudiate [illegible] the document altogether was not wise in offering this protest, because the more perfectly such documents are drawn to suit the case the more easily they apprehend their object; but the more loose and discordant they are, the greater the difficulty to convict the person tried by them. It seemed to the Committee that the accused, instead of dividing or rather multiplying [illegible] for the sake of economy, have put them all [illegible] by [illegible] thus: "B[illegible] against the [illegible]"

We come now to Bro. DeVore's comments in the finding of the charge and specifications sustained against him. But in the [illegible] the space will not admit [illegible] of these. I will notice the first that the expenses [illegible] which the [illegible] sustain the charge against him. Had he not remarked upon the [illegible] should [illegible] say a word about them, but the community have had one side, it is fair they should have the other: they have his version, it is fair they should have ours.

He says: "The general charge brought against me was 'Immoral Conduct,' under which were no less than eleven specifications. The defense expected to sustain the charge. Of these eight were laid aside as [illegible] down or judged insufficient to sustain the charge. Only three out of the eleven were sustained and judged of sufficient moral turpitude to sustain the charge."

I would say [illegible] specification was withdrawn, leaving but [illegible] of these were sustained, viz: the 1st, 2d, 4th, 6th and 9th [illegible] of these did not sustain the charge under which they were written. The reason was the committee gave the accused the full benefit of every doubt in their minds, as they did on every other point. They would have sustained a charge of a different character had they been subscribed to such.

Specification II was the first which being sustained sustained the charge unanimously. It reads: "In that under oath and under special instruction that his compensation should be $10 per day for every day necessarily employed in making said appraisement, he did falsely and covetously charge for [illegible] days [illegible] in such appraisement when he was not so engaged for that length of time."

The appraisement was as follows: "I and two others were appointed by the Government as appraisers of the property on Neah Bay, W. T. From the time that two of us received our commissions until we could finally agree on the awards was just 36 days. Our first bills against the Government were therefore made out for that length of time. But upon learning [illegible] that not more than 12 days of the time could be allowed, I immediately reduced my bill to that amount. They were days of danger and anxiety. I have not yet received a cent and know not that I ever shall."

On the 23d of last July Rev. J. F. Devore, through General Milroy at Olympia, W. T.—Superintendent of Indian Affairs—was appointed to act with two others in the Commission as the party representing the interests of the Government in appraisement of certain property at Neah Bay, W. T. On the 7th of August the Commission was put under oath by U. S. Commissioner John D. Burns to "honestly and faithfully appraise at a fair cash value the improvements that should be pointed out to them by," etc. They were instructed that their compensation would be $10 per day "[illegible] necessarily employed" (the tales ours) "in making said appraisement and their necessary expenses while so employed." On the evening of August 7th the Commission found themselves on board the Puget Milling Company's steamer [illegible] H. Walker, chartered by Government for their convenience. After a run of 80 miles, occupying about ten hours, on Friday morning, August 8th, they found themselves at Neah Bay, when the Board immediately organized and went to work and completed the appraisement in two days—the 8th and 9th. Here Bro. DeVore found himself associated with men evidently enlisted in the interest of Mr. Webster—owner of the property—and who designed to procure a large grab from the pocket of the Government. Webster's arbitrator had marked the property up to $40,000. The other party had fixed it at $8,000. But Bro. DeVore's figures had only aggregated $10,700. This was no doubt carrying out the tenor of his oath—honestly and faithfully appraising the property at a fair cash value. All it is according to his best judgment. What now should have been done? It would seem that Bro. DeVore's plain duty was—not being able to agree with the others—to make a statement to that effect and a minority report to the Government officer at Olympia through whom he received his appointment. His instructions to that effect were specific.

"When you have completed said appraisement you will without permitting the [illegible] to be known by any one, make triplicate copies of the same and seal up and send [illegible] over the [illegible] to the [illegible] at this office. Yours respectfully,
J. H. MILROY,
Superintendent Indian Office W. T."

But instead of doing so the Commission adjourned to meet on the 19th of August at Steilacoom, W. T., at which time they met, but not agreeing any better than before, adjourned again to meet on the 27th at Kalama, W. T. Meeting at which time they were able to agree by Bro. DeVore's adding to his honest and faithful appraisement at a fair cash value the little item of $9,400, making with $10,[illegible] $20,100.

In a letter from Superintendent Milroy to Hon. E. P. Smith, Commissioner of Indian Affairs, Washington, D. C., dated at Olympia, Oct. [illegible], 1873, he says:

"It will be seen by the appointment of the appraisers that their pay was placed at $10 per day for each day necessarily employed in making such appraisements and necessary expenses while so engaged. It will be seen by their accounts filed that two of them (Montgomery and DeVore) have each charged for thirty-six days services and $[illegible] expenses without giving items, and that [illegible] of them has charged for twenty-eight days services and $[illegible] for expenses without specifying items. It will be seen by reference to the record of their proceedings that they met and organized on board [illegible] at Neah Bay, August 9th, 18[illegible], and were in session there to [illegible] then adjourned from that time to the 19th, and from the last named day to the [illegible], when they finished [illegible] one to showing that they were in session and necessarily employed four days, [illegible] at Neah Bay and one at the first meeting, after adjournment at [illegible] and [illegible] following one day [illegible] for [illegible] these meetings, which [illegible] will give them six [illegible] they can legally charge [illegible] appraisement [illegible] the record."

"But it would probably be just to allow Messrs. DeVore and Montgomery each [illegible] days more for traveling [illegible] making their [illegible] days each. When each of their accounts for necessary expenses are itemized [illegible] they will, with their per diem, allow [illegible] for settlement. But I [illegible] the full amount of per diem and expenses [illegible] by the appraisers at the [illegible] are fully [illegible] made [illegible] the [illegible] are allowed [illegible] [illegible] should [illegible]."

It will be seen from this letter of Superintendent Milroy that had the Commission reported when the appraisements were completed, without adjourning to Steilacoom and then to Kalama, he would have allowed but four days to Mr. Hill [illegible] at Neah Bay and one to go and one to return, and only six days to DeVore and Montgomery. That this [illegible] was [illegible] from the fact that the Government repudiated the work of DeVore, Montgomery and Hill, [illegible] by Mr. [illegible] letter to Smith [illegible], and appointed a new commission of which Mr. Lloyd Brooke of Portland was one, which commission appraised the said property and did the same work [illegible] only [illegible] five days.

The question is whether or not the accused was [illegible] during 36 days for which he charged, which elapsed from the time of receiving the commission to the time they adjourned sine die? What did he do from the 23d of July to within say three days before the 7th of August—twelve days before it was time to start on the commission? What did he do in the seeming interims of adjournment, [illegible] plus equal 16 days? Why, he went on to his district and held his quarterly meetings as a presiding elder, and probably visited his home in Portland, Oregon, once or twice meanwhile, and so on. [illegible] There occurred five Sabbaths during the time. On one of which he preached at Neah Bay. On three others he held quarterly meetings, and on the other he was probably preaching, certainly not employed for the Government. For these five Sabbaths he drew a salary from the district as P. E., and charged the Government each Sabbath $10—$50 in all—for being necessarily employed in making appraisements. And a Christian minister [illegible] would not allow a [illegible] particularly employed [illegible] We countenance our ministers [illegible] ten dollars per day [illegible] to comply. It would [illegible] that Bro. DeVore would [illegible] the Government [illegible] and personal expenses while on his district holding quarterly meetings [illegible] charge the Government [illegible] such times.

Whether or not he did falsely and covetously charge for [illegible] days as engaged and employed in appraisement when he was not so engaged for that length of time, I here express no opinion. I expressed it then in the committee room after four days investigation and five hours joint and careful prayer and study in making up judgment. Those who are capable of making up their judgment in the case by giving attention to the statements of the accused party better than five men can do it after giving four days and five hours close and prayerful examination of the subject, are men of great capability. And they who will allow themselves to do so are very unsafe judges in matters where interest and character are at stake.

It may be easy for some having little knowledge of the case, being perfectly ready and ready to speak, to suppose the trial of Rev. J. F. DeVore has been commenced and carried through out of personal enmity to the accused; that it is persecution to be sure, on the part of Bro. Roberts. Those who know most about the matter have no such opinion. I am no apologist for W. Roberts or any other man, but I am satisfied that not one of the committee can attribute to him any such motive, or any motive but a desire to see either the accused acquitted and fully exculpated, or the Church vindicated in the administration of discipline; and in these sentiments and feelings we all share. I have no unfriendly or unchristian feeling against Bro. DeVore, far from it. As I said in concluding the answer to a friendly note from him: so I here repeat. "I purpose that my heart shall not oppose him, you; but I cannot promise to hold such control over my judgment."

In conclusion I remark, This has been written by my own hand; no eye but my own has ever read a syllable of this manuscript, and no person but myself hath known a word it contains—[illegible]—until it goes into the hand of the editor. NEHEMIAH DOANE.

MINERAL SPRINGS OF THE M'KENZIE

MCKENZIE VALLEY, LANE CO.,
March 10, 1874.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

More than two years ago you gave in your paper a somewhat extended account of the above springs and valley, to which a road had recently been opened, and one of the springs occupied as a healthful resort. Two of them are at present so occupied, the proprietors of each showing a becoming rivalry in making their respective places more comfortable or attractive to visitors than the other. The one first discovered on the main river, about sixty miles east by north of Eugene City, Messrs. Belknap & Sims proprietors, is named the Pool of Siloam. The other, called the Bethesda Spring, owned by Foley & Alexander, is situated six miles southwest of the former, on Horse Creek, the largest tributary of the McKenzie.

Whatever fame these waters may have acquired in the few months they have been accessible to invalids may be regarded as due to their effect upon those who have sought relief from them; certainly not from extensive advertising, for though the owners of them are fully awake to the advantage secured by the use of printer's ink, they still prefer to have the springs rise on their merits. No critical analysis of the waters has so far been known, been attempted, but many simple tests and the evidence of experienced persons go to prove them to be highly medicinal.

It may be said without prejudice to these springs that the admirer of nature will here find a resort unmarred by the ravages of misnamed art; that here the restrictions of watering place society are unknown. No exquisite toilets are necessary to keep you in your set; no liveried flunkies no fancy prices to pay for necessaries, luxuries nor treatment. The surrounding mountains are rough, but rich in scenery, and game, while trout are plentiful. They are most frequented by people from the Willamette, chiefly farmers, who find a leisure week or month each season and who, having a delicate wife, child or neighbor, bring them here to bathe, steam, shower, drink, or otherwise use the waters, and in most cases with marked benefit. The diseases which seem to be treated with the greatest success are rheumatism, neuralgia and all eruptive and cutaneous disease, and the use of the water is also found beneficial in a tonic or general way. The amusements here consist chiefly in hunting, fishing, berrying and social intercourse. Among farmers their occupation furnishes a ready subject for exchange of views, while finance, law, politics, the Grangers, etc., are often brought under discussion.

Many needed improvements are being made on the road leading to the Springs from Eugene City, and quicker and cheaper access will be had to them this season than heretofore. Quite a large breadth of excellent land is here awaiting settlement, of which, unfortunately, but a small proportion is open or prairie. Owing to its greater elevation the atmosphere is somewhat dryer, more bracing and less subject to extremes than that of the Willamette. Several weeks of sleighing will in the future be one part of the winter's amusements and attractions here.

From the columns of the OREGONIAN, always a welcome visitor, we receive the fullest account of all affairs concerning our State, owing no doubt to able and reliable correspondents. We await with interest the History—by Mr. Pengra of our county—which shall tend to the relief of our commercial and industrial interest. Matters of concern to us all—Purity of the Ballot, Official honesty and like sentiment coming as they generally do from professional politicians mean nothing at they [illegible]. But from a man whose time is neither dedicated to party or other save the general welfare, they may well be heeded. We must confess to a faith in Mr. Williams' integrity and will hear him explain before deciding against him, but should he prove to have been corrupt, we can afford to lose him. P.

BRITISH COLUMBIA

Steamer Mitchell broke down while on her way from the Sound to Burrard Inlet last week.

The Mechanics' Institute of Victoria has purchased Philharmonic Hall in that city for $[illegible],000, payable in ten years.

Another regiment (one of three now on the way from England) is to be added to the military force now in British Columbia.

The steamer Otter, which left Victoria for Fort Wrangel on the 11th, had on board sixty persons bound for the Cassiar mine. The Fleet [illegible] on the previous day carried fifty persons.

Mr. A. Strachan, while at work on the steamer [illegible] Prince at Victoria, was struck on the forehead with a flying fragment from an iron wedge which split while being driven, and seriously hurt.

It is said that one of the local capitalists has offered to loan the city of Victoria $50,000 at 7 per cent. interest per annum. Another capitalist it is also said has sent his money back to London to loan at 4 per cent. per annum.

The Ottawa Times, a prominent organ of the Mackenzie Administration, says: "It would be well for the British Columbians if they would manifest more prudence in conducting their own business, otherwise they will succeed in demonstrating that they [illegible] government [illegible] the [illegible] the [illegible] then shall have [illegible] not be completed."

The Pacific Mail Steamship Company [illegible] all [illegible] ship to call at [illegible] on the voyage between San Francisco and [illegible] subsidized [illegible] a subsidy of $[illegible],000 per annum. [illegible] Dominion Government have tendered $60,000 and are [illegible] to raise the [illegible] $100,000 [illegible] will be two steamers each month each way, and the company calculate that the voyage would entail only half a day additional time to the voyage, owing to the northern route being so much shorter than the southern. The steamers would call then at [illegible]. If the Victorians succeed, it will help [illegible].

OREGON

Oregon has twenty-two money order offices.

The stately elk stalked unmolested through the principal streets of the town of Union last week.

Many cattle about Weston have already perished, and still the fatality is reported to continue.

Uncle Jesse Applegate, of Southern Oregon, is reported to have lost 1,800 head of sheep the past winter.

James Baker, of Jackson county, was sent to the penitentiary for one year last week upon a conviction for larceny.

The delegates to the Democratic State Convention from Union county are J. H. Slater, [illegible] Hunter, [illegible] N. [illegible]lege, J. A. Tucker and John Dobbins.

Maurice Graves, of Union county, has been sentenced to the Penitentiary for three years on a plea of guilty to a charge of horse-stealing. It is his second term.

James Gentry, who had been held to answer for the murder of Henry White at Linkville sometime in January, was exonerated by the Grand Jury of Jackson county last week.

On the 7th inst. the snow was from 10 to 16 inches deep all over Powder river valley. The average temperature for the week ending that date at Baker City was 27° above zero. On the [illegible] the mercury was at [illegible] above zero.

Mr. Slater having no [illegible] of the La Grande Sentinel to give up the material with which that paper is printed, it is likely to be suspended for a time, but Mr. [illegible] proposes to reissue with other material in a few weeks.

With Obenchain, of Jackson county, who was badly scratched up by a grizzly bear about a year ago, had a chase after a huge black bear last week which had killed one of his cows. In both instances he succeeded making meat of bruin.

A. D. Saunders, of Lafayette, wishes to know the whereabouts of Johnathan Riggs and Isaiah Potect, who came with him last fall from Kansas, and any one who can give any information of their whereabouts will confer a favor by addressing him as above.

The Sentinel says: "A very respectable portion of the delegates to the Democratic County Convention, which convened at the Court House in Jacksonville on the 7th instant, withdrew from the Convention upon the ground that the party was not fairly represented."

Henry John, for whom a warrant was issued by Justice Colley at the time of the affray between Johns and Perry Mansey, at Salem, was arrested in that city last Saturday. He waived examination and gave bail in the sum of $200 for appearance before the Grand Jury during its present sitting.

All those who have claims growing out of the Modoc war against the Quartermaster's Department of the U. S. Army should send their address to the Acting Assistant Quartermaster at Fort Klamath, with instructions where they will have their checks sent, giving also the amount due them.

The Jacksonville Sentinel tells a yarn that is just a little hard to believe. It is that a Court in that county fined two men each $5 and costs, and as the men had no money the Court took their notes for the amount, and thinking the State ought to have security from its debtors the Court signed the notes as security.

La Grande Grange, the first in Union county, was organized last week with officers as follows: M. Baker, Master; A. W. Waters, O.; Jos. Palmer, S.; D. A. McAllister, A. S.; C. Arnold, T.; Nessly, C.; S. O. Swackhammer, Sec.; J. Ladd, [illegible] A. Hemming, G. K.; Mrs. Mary Webb, S.; Mrs. Rachel Ladd, C.; Mrs. Sarah Waters, P.; Mrs. Lucie Shambaugh, F.

Deputy Master Bruck last week organized Eagle Point Grange, on Butte Creek, Jackson county. The following are the officers for the ensuing year: James Miller, W. M.; Peter Simon, O.; Wilson Potter, L.; George Nichols, S.; H. J. Fern, A. S.; A. C. Howlett, C.; Levi Tinkham, T.; Joseph Cleft, Sec.; John Nichols, G. K.; Elizabeth Simon, Ceres; Elizabeth Culbertson, P.; Thepdo[illegible] Culbertson, F.; Lola Nichols, L. A. S.

The Jacksonville Sentinel of last Saturday says: "Quite a number of citizens of the Klamath Basin have been in attendance on Court, principally witnesses in the Gentry-White case. They report the trip a rough one in the extreme, there being eight feet of snow on the Cascade mountains, and the weather cold. They bring only confirmation of previous reports concerning the distress of cattle and sheep men in that region. Nearly all will lose more or less of their stock, and in some cases whole bands will perish. They bring the report also that Jesse Applegate, after freezing hands and feet in attempts to save his stock, had finally been compelled to abandon the herd to their fate. The Applegates will doubtless be heavy losers. No word reaches us from Goose Lake valley. We have no doubt, however, the storms prevail there also, and much loss in stock will also be suffered in that locality yet. In the absence of knowledge of that fact we shall entertain a hope to the contrary."

WEDNESDAY MORNING MARCH 18 1874

SOME MILD CONUNDRUMS

The Bulletin has just made another of those marvelous discoveries for which it has been distinguished under its associated editorship, and its paroxysm of virtuous indignation is even more severe this time than usual. The thing it has discovered is absolutely alarming, and ... contemplate ... of the ... of the State Government. It may surprise those who know that the Bulletin is conducted during the absence of the editor-in-chief Mr James O'Meara ... individual whom Mr O'Meara styled—happy thought—the associate editorship, to learn that this last and most startling discovery ... through the Bulletin is that the Independent movement in Oregon is in the interest of the Lock and Canal Company, and its object is the purchase of those works by the State. We have supposed the people who are favoring the independent movement were capable of the very least of knowing what they were in favor of and what were the motives that actuated them to go into this movement, and we venture to assert that they themselves have never realized that the purchase of the canal and locks formed any part of the purposes for which they are co-operating. In short the whole story over which the Bulletin makes such a fuss is one of its own invention, and has not the slightest foundation in fact.

But that which may occasion most surprise to those who are informed as to the facts in the premises, is that the Bulletin under the management of the aforementioned "associated editorship" should appear to be so greatly shocked at the thought that somebody or other might propose to have the State purchase these works. This fact certainly demands explanation when viewed in connection with certain other facts. Until it is explained people are liable to suspect there is "a cat in the meal," for this self same "associated editorship" was at Salem during the last session of the Legislature lobbying and log rolling with all his might to secure the passage of the bill introduced by Mr Ben Simpson to authorize the purchase. It will be recollected that our John Hipple, by whom, as Mr Holladay's general overseer the Bulletin's policy is shaped, was at the same time engaged in the same enterprise. These persons now are or affect to be horrified at the idea of that being done, which they then labored so hard to accomplish.

In view of these inconsistencies the following conundrums are propounded to H W Scott the "associated editorship" of the Bulletin, with the hope that he will not consider them impertinent and that when he begins to answer them he will make a clean breast of it, instead of taking the course he took when Pengra cornered him on the corruption fund business, that is, pleading his right to refuse to testify, when, by answering, he would criminate himself.

1 If the purchase of the Locks by the State was so very proper and desirable when you and Hipple were working, night and main, before the Legislature to have it done, is it not equally proper and desirable now? If it is, then,

2 What has induced you to change your mind? But if it is not then

What are the particular facts or events that have intervened to make that improper now which was so extremely proper at the time of the last Legislature? And if no such facts or events can be specified then,

4 Were you insincere in advocating the measure at the Legislature, or are you insincere in your opposition to it at this time, which? and this suggests,

5 How much were you to be paid for assisting to pass the bill, and how was it to be paid? and now we come by a natural process of the mind to a question that is capable of being divided and may require two or three separate answers in case a division is called for, namely

6 Is it the Custom House or the Bulletin, or both, which Holladay threatens to take away from you, if you do not double on your track and denounce a measure of which you were but lately a zealous advocate?

WATCH THEM

We understand the members of the bribers' ring were openly declaring yesterday on the streets that great numbers of citizens who are supporting the independent movement in this county will form no obstacle to the success of the regular ring candidates but will merely make the election more expensive to the ring, and that five or six thousand dollars expended on the floating vote in this city will render the defeat of the people's ticket sure. Let there be no want of vigilance in regard to this matter. It looks now as if it would be impossible to purchase enough votes to defeat the independent movement so overwhelming is the sentiment in its favor but it must not be forgotten that with the rule ... at command and with the skill derived from long practice the ring will be able to buy more illegal votes and procure more repeating ... be done than might be generally supposed. A few hundred repeaters can settle the matter against the people. Citizens who would enjoy the benefits of an honest ballot need not hope to enjoy it in this city, except by making it impossible for the bribers to escape ... and punishment ... fear of the law the old ... enforced.

The ... remarkable feat of stopping a railway train containing about fifty persons ... through the affrighted herd was detailed in these columns several weeks ago ... still at large notwithstanding the immense reward—$1000—which awaits the captors. Let the Missouri authorities send for Steve Venard the famous Nevada detective. We believe he is still living. He has never been known to miss his man.

The Bender horror is approaching a solution. An ill favored old scoundrel who was caught away out in the wilderness of alkali and sage brush east of the Rocky Mountains has been identified as the Kansas monster.

DOUGLAS COUNTY CORRESPONDENCE

THE TRUTH ABOUT ... MATTERS

ROSEBURG March 11 1874

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

Several erroneous statements having been spread abroad by different sources in this city, ... of the ... this ... the Plaindealer ... Gov Grover ... subject ... and ... Democratic County Convention ... number of Democratic delegates. We call the Plaindealer ... Convention was a failure ... of the ... party in the ... delegates were properly before that Convention before the election of State delegates ... that the ... delegates from the large precincts of Oakland ... represented their ... exhibit their credentials to the Convention ... and there ... demand was made ... that on the motion ... report these delegates endeavored to protest but were declared out of order. It is no legitimate excuse in defense of this extraordinary and high handed assumption of power that these discarded gentlemen happened to be late in arriving. They did reach that orthodox assemblage ... the temporary Chairman still presiding ... as a further proof that one of the delegates ... a reading of the report on credentials on the motion ... arbitrary action of the Convention was a discourtesy—an insult not only to the honorable gentlemen appearing as delegates but to the large mass of the party which they represented, and they should not have been thus denied a voice in the proceedings at any time prior to the adoption of the report of ... subsequent ... every legislative body is in proof that a representative of the people coming properly certified is entitled to his seat and to participation in the proceedings at any stage and at any hour of the session or term ... otherwise the constituency by unavoidable delay may be deprived of an inalienable right and the object of self government frustrated. Why should this rule be more arbitrary in a nominating convention where the people are equally interested? It is in this way the interests of the demagogue become paramount, the rights of the people merely subordinate. And it is in opposition to just such chicanery of Conventions as now practiced by partisan majorities that the present determined stand of the people is taken. The truth is the whole Convention was a simple farce as are all Conventions where the people repudiate them. It is the play of Hamlet with Hamlet left out.

Referring to the Convention which issued the Independent State call the Plaindealer states that "a few ambitious individuals made the call that has been so extensively circulated." An ... (which this litigant organ so ironically dubs itself) should learn to narrate the truth however galling the recital of that truth may be to it. This is the pride of respectable journalism. The Convention which issued that call had over three times as many in personal attendance as had the late Democratic Convention nor was it like it—a funereal concourse, but comprised seventy of our foremost citizens delegates and tax payers, elected by the independent Democrats and Republicans of Douglas county, and these delegates were not only unanimous but zealous in their determination to extend the independent movement beyond the confines of the county. They duly appreciate the promptness with which the people in other portions of the State are responding to the call. We feel highly honored that this movement which emanated in Douglas county has proven itself so eminent a success. The main chagrin of the Plaindealer fraternity is not so much at the county as at the judicial district and State move. It is here it sees the significant hand-writing on the wall. That call has brought into the judicial arena already not only John but a David whose prowess must soon be experienced by the Plaindealer Goliath. Then said David to the Philistine—Thou comest to me with a sword and with a spear ... but I come to thee in the name of the Lord of Hosts the God of the armies of Israel, whom thou hast defied. As to Mr Herman Mr Gurney and a few others whom the Plaindealer says were most active in the independent movement for a State Convention it is creditable as it is gratifying to them that they are seconded by the large mass of the people of their county irrespective of party and that the call is now reverberating in trumpet tones throughout the whole State of Oregon. As to Hon George Durham it is quite certain he was seldom if at all present at the Convention and still more certain that he had no agency direct or indirect in the proceedings which we are pleased to learn he endorses as the correct stand. Truth is mighty, and will prevail—the Plaindealer to the contrary notwithstanding.

A feeble voice has also been raised against this movement ... correspondent of the Bulletin. This fellow whose ... Black Mud ... very appropriately names him self thereby ... similarity between the two especially in the softness of the two elements which his ignorant and insistent scribbling demonstrates. Being a willing employee of Ben Holladay he feels his tenure of office more secure by frequent crazy letters in his master's service, which are so far known as the first and second epistles of Black Mud the Apostle to the Hippleites as recorded in the Bulletin. From such an ink slinger what can the people expect complimentary to them and we charitably pass over his statements derogatory to the independent movement.

In conclusion it is only necessary to repeat that the independent State call was signed by seventy of the people's and tax payers delegates of our county. They alone are the prime movers in this call and the people not only in the county but throughout the State will stand by them in overwhelming majority. The interests we are contending for are identical in every county. It is a conflict for principle and such an issue should not be circumscribed by county lines. YOU GUESS

SUDDEN DEATH —Mr J J Wilkens, for many years mine host at the New York hotel, died quite suddenly on Monday night He had been complaining for some time, but no apprehensions were felt by his friends As usual he retired to bed on Monday evening Early on Tuesday morning his wife attempted to arouse him from his slumbers To her repeated calls and shaking Mr Wilkens gave no response, Mrs Wilkens then lighted a candle to ascertain if anything was the matter She then discovered to her utter horror and dismay that her husband was a corpse He had died sometime during the night from what is supposed to be heart disease Deceased was aged 43 years The funeral will take place to-day at 2 o'clock from the New York hotel

STARTED TOO EARLY —A gentleman who arrived from Fort Wrangel a few days ago, informs us that persons who started some weeks since for the Stickeen mines have been in too great a hurry as they will assuredly find out to their discomfiture He has resided at Fort Wrangel for a number of years and knows whereof he speaks He says the ice in the river rarely ever breaks up before the 6th of May and persons who leave here on the 1st of May will be plenty early enough Those who leave here four or five weeks hence will reach the mines about as soon as those who started some time ago

This evening, Mr Whyte's benefit

As per announcement Mr Whyte the well known theatrical gentleman, will be the recipient of a complimentary benefit this evening at Oro Fino Theater tendered by the members of Sedgwick and Baker Post. Mr. Whyte has had the entire management of the "Color Guard" which has been produced under the auspices of a number of amateurs—members of the Post—and which has met with such unprecedented success at the hands of this public. As we said Mr Whyte has had the entire management of the piece, and its success is mainly attributable to his extensive experience patience and thorough knowledge of [illegible] was needed not uncoupled with his go[illegible] For his labors he certainly deserves [illegible] and we are pleased to learn that he is to be the recipient of a benefit Mr Whyte is a deserving member of the profession he represents and we sincerely hope he may have a crowded house The "Color Guard" will be presented this evening for the last time on the occasion of his benefit. (New specialties are to be introduced by Mr. Brown in his personation of Peter Hygley, and Mr Newport as Tim Flynn We learn that all the members of the Post are making vigorous efforts to fill the house In behalf of a truly deserving gentleman we would urge upon the public to give Whyte a substantial benefit this evening

OBSERVANCES OF THE ANNIVERSARY OF IRELAND'S PATRON SAINT BY THE IRISH CITIZENS OF PORTLAND—MUSIC, PARADE ORATION, BALLS, ETC ETC

When the average Portlander arose yesterday morning there were already numerous flags displayed at the mastheads in honor of the anniversary of St Patrick's Day The morning broke cold and foggy and indications were flattering for an early and copious descent of the gentle dews of Webfoot However as the day advanced it became evident these predictions were destined to not be fulfilled About 1 o clock the fog was lifted up from the landscape the clouds were dispelled and the bright and glorious sun shone out with all his strength making the face of all nature appear glad and cheerful

From an early hour the streets and sidewalks were alive with the bustling crowd watching with eager expectation the first appearance of the procession Everybody seemed to be fully alive to the fact that it was St Patrick's Day in the morning and preparing to make the most of it On every hand was observed an unusual degree of activity especially among those who were intending to be participants in the day's proceedings About

TEN O'CLOCK

The Emmet Guard formed at their Armory and marched in regular order to the Cathedral at the corner of Stark and Third streets and attended the religious ceremonies held at the church Meantime the several other organizations were busily engaged in making preparations for joining the procession at the hour appointed

Eleven o clock was the hour designated as the time for forming the procession but for some reasons—those unavoidable delays common on all such occasions—the procession was not ready to take up the line of march until nearly 12 o clock About 11 o clock the Emmet Guard left their Armory and headed by the East Portland Band marched to the corner of Third and Stark streets at which place the procession was to form Here the procession was arranged in the

FOLLOWING ORDER

First came the East Portland Band neatly attired and in full force next came the Emmet Guard carriages in which were seated the President and Orator of the day, the Catholic clergy and invited guests the members of the Father Mathew Society and the United Irishmen

The following is the route of march observed After being formed along Third street the right resting on Oak, the procession marched down Third to Ash, down Ash to Front up Front to Alder, up Alder to First up First to Jefferson, up Jefferson to Fourth up Fourth to St. Mary's Academy Along the route the band discoursed a number of lively Irish airs in their most dashing and animated style The sidewalks and streets were thronged with the eager crowds, all hurrying forward towards the Academy

On arriving at the Academy the procession filed through the gate up into the inclosure, and were arranged in proper order about the grounds. As many spectators as could find convenient standing room were admitted by the guard, stationed at the entrance, but although the grounds were well filled and but little vacant room left not more than half of the people who had followed the crowd were permitted to enter As soon as the crowd was arranged and order restored the vocal and instrumental exercises of the pupils of the Academy, under direction of the Sisters commenced About 150 pupils, ranging in years from 9 to 18 were placed in regular order about the piazza, attired in scrupulously neat but plain dresses, with their bright handsome faces wreathed in sunny smiles and their hearts brimful of happy emotions These happy school girls under the control of the quiet placid, dignified Sisters presented a most gladsome picture, and constituted the most agreeable and interesting feature of the occasion A number of beautiful songs were rendered by the pupils accompanied by the organ and historic Harp, which were fittingly responded to by the band At the conclusion of these exercises, Mr S J McCormick President of the day, stepped forward and addressed the Sisters and the pupils under their charge in a few, but very happy remarks

THE PROCESSION

Then reformed and marched down Fourth street to Oak, down Oak to First and up First to Oro Fino Theater On arriving in front of the theater the procession halted and were allowed to file up the stairway After the military and civic companies had entered the building and were comfortably seated, several hundred spectators were admitted until the large and spacious room was densely packed On the stage were seated the Orator of the Day the President of the Day, the members of the band, officers of Emmet Guard, and also delegations from the other civic organizations

Mr S J McCormick, President of the Day called the vast assemblage to order after which the band discoursed a lively Irish air

The President of the Day then came forward and delivered the introductory address

Rev P F Gibney, the Orator of the Day was then introduced and delivered the following

ORATION

Mr President, Ladies and Gentlemen I accept with the greatest pleasure the high honor you have conferred on me in calling me to address this majestic meeting as Orator of the Day I feel honored yes more than I ever felt in my whole life But at the same time that you have done me the honor you have humbled me inasmuch as I am conscious of my inability to do justice to the subject and the occasion His Honor too the President of the Day instead of encouraging me made me still more nervous by his flowery and flattering introduction His Honor has a powerful and vivid imagination and so in his enthusiasm it has carried him far away over the seas and in his own dear, native land there it has conjured up the great orator Rev Tom Burk and in a moment, and only for a moment, it seemed to have him there but alas! recollection at hand soon hurried it back to despair Yes fellow countrymen, you too will despair before I get through with this oration—not that it will be too long, no, it will be fault less in that respect but it will be too dry, for each and every one of you know as well as I do the history of St Patrick and Ireland The subject has been treated so often and so ably by those who have gone before me that it has become like a carefully worn garment—it is now worn threadbare and I cannot find anything new to say to you on this occasion Nevertheless I must say something, for I hear the voice and you all feel [illegible] countrymen hear it the voice of Erin, again calling upon her children to assemble and rejoice and be glad and lay upon the holy altar of our creed and country the heartfelt offerings of the Irish people to the dear land that gave us birth Yes from the far distant [illegible] from the far distant isle of saints and scholars across ocean island and continent wherever the lot of one of her children may be cast Erin's plaintive voice is heard [illegible] and its pleasure finds a responsive chord in every Irish heart No mountains so high no cavern so low no valley so secluded no prairie so vast no forest so dense but the voice of Erin reaches their remotest recesses carrying with it new hope new inspiration new love to the heart of every son and daughter of the Emerald Isle O how delighted was I myself in the scene which I witnessed as we marched along in grand procession here to day how my heart throbbed how my spirit was elevated how my bosom swelled with delight at the [illegible] of stalwart Irishmen [illegible] in procession to day doing honor to their great Apostle and their dear native land! I was delighted I say at the activity and animation that [illegible] me and my heart grew warmer still in admiring the beauty of the [illegible] of Ireland Yes [illegible] here I will say it [illegible] is straightly [illegible] the eyes of Ireland's [illegible] that I scarcely [illegible] and could not [illegible] [illegible] her fellow [illegible] the sons the father the [illegible] the lands of [illegible] should never possess [illegible] his own [illegible] to

And why not [illegible] the cause of Ireland and the history of our country witnessing our splendid display of green and gold to day [illegible] ring[illegible] and [illegible] throughout the city would conclude that we were the happiest people in the world, why should we not arrive at the same conclusion We are the happiest people in the world for we possess that which alone can give true happiness and bring joy to the heart of man—we possess that genuine faith that good seed sown by our glorious Apostle which has brought fourth fruit ten thousand fold and that fruit still remains and shall remain to the end of time Ask of me and I will give thee the world for thine inheritance and the extreme ends of the earth for thy possession His splendid [illegible] ever uttered by Father to Son was the promise of an inheritance wide as the earth and lasting as the world In these words was contained the promise that all nations and empires and dominions were to be His and also that every human heart was to be held in subjection to the law of virtue and love In virtue of this privilege granted by the Almighty God to the Eternal Son the Apostles and disciples of our Lord visited all the cities and nations of the world with the glad tidings and gospel of man's redemption and established it in the name of the Crucified Redeemer This mission was highly necessary for the world's government This mission of redeeming the world was to be holy and entirely spiritual including alike Emperors and subjects the people and Government the Government of the universe and the Church was to be united all in one and inseparable from each other War was to be waged the spirit of man was to be conquered, and the Gospel was to wage the war against the powers of darkness and the passions of men The field of battle was the human mind and the victory was the human heart

In the fourth century Ireland was subjected to all the superstitions of the Druidical arts and mysteries It had remained in this condition from the earliest and most remote ages but God in His mercy never forgot Ireland The knowledge of our faith being infused by the Almighty our countrymen in return have introduced that faith into every distant land In the fourth century our Divine Lord showed Paladius that the time had at length come for the manifestation of his power in behalf of Ireland But Saint Paladius was not the instrument that our Lord was to employ in the work He had determined to employ another who was to be specially fitted for that holy work Paladius was not the one No the Lord had consigned it to another who was then laboring under a cruel taskmaster in the fields who was to fill the entire world with the glory of his name a name that was to surpass that of the most famous in history—Saint Patrick That name shall be celebrated from our pulpits and altars and ascend from earth up to heaven in tones of thanksgiving and praise as long as the everlasting Church of Christ shall exist upon earth

Saint Patrick was born it is supposed in the year of our Lord 373 He was born in a town of Brittany or France The name which the young Priest received was Succath which means, valiant in war and brave in battle The name which he now bears—Patrick—was conferred upon him when a Bishop by the Pontiff at Rome as a mark of a high sense of esteem which he entertained for him and his superior virtues and merits at the same time a great privilege calculated to give effect to the mission which he was about to undertake I know there are persons who use the name Patrick as a term of disdain and derision but they are wretches beneath the notice of an honest man and [illegible] only show their own profound ignorance of history and of the name Patrick, which implies a nobleman of the highest rank and from the virtues and purity of St Patrick that name has received an additional lustre Who can hear that name or pronounce it without reverence? or think of it without love? On the 17th of March on this day, wherever an Irishman can be found wherever there is an exile wherever industry is encouraged and legitimate business carried on there on the great 17th the name of Patrick is made to resound It gladdens the heart it unites the bands of the exiles by a glorious affection and reminds them of the shamrock clad hills and valleys. In every land can be heard the glorious anthems of the blessed Apostle ascending to the very Throne of God and entrancing heaven itself in the rapturous exultations of the myriads of Ireland's saints

A sad event marred the happiness of St. Patrick When about the age of sixteen he was taken into captivity to the island of Erin and there he spent the years of his life in bondage and persecution Did his love of God diminish? No His heart was lifted frequently to God and his nights were spent in prayer and as the years rolled by he grew more and more in the love of God—his faith was augmented, His prayers went constantly to heaven and he received no injury from his captivity for the spirit of God was warm within him When he had spent some six years in this state he was one night in his sleep favored with a vision, telling him to repair to a certain part of the coast for a ship was ready to carry him back to France The Saint arrived at the place of his destiny and found a ship just ready to sail for his native land Arriving there, he found that both of his parents were dead In his great grief he pitied the Pagan blindness of his former masters and the errors of their idolatry The great desire took possession of him to be made the instrument of their conversion He was peculiarly fitted for the task—being as he was, fully acquainted with the habits of the people

While in France he was favored with another vision in which he thought he saw a messenger coming to him from Ireland with a large number of letters in his hand containing the voice of the people of Ireland He said of himself I broke the seal and began to read and as I read I heard a voice calling out, Oh! we beseech you, holy youth to come back and still continue to walk amongst us And with these words, he said, my tears began to flow from compassion towards the people of Ireland, and then I awoke All these and many other visions of the same nature convinced Patrick that his mission lay in the direction of the Green Isle and to look upon himself as certainly called by the Almighty God to be made the instrument of their conversion and he began to prepare himself His first great care was to supply that deficiency caused in his education by his long captivity and in attaining this end he employed his time for thirty years, principally in the study of philosophy and theology, and during that time he was ordained Bishop In the science of eternal life Patrick advanced, patiently looking forward with desire to the period when it should please the Almighty God to bless him by calling him to the high and important station of converting Ireland At length the appointed time arrived and Patrick together with a number of chosen companions to the number of twenty two set sail for the land of their destiny In short Ireland became converted to the true faith and under Patrick's divine guidance the land flourished Learning soon spread colleges and monasteries were plentiful all over the land students from every nation came to her and entered her schools and colleges to receive the instruction which they could not obtain in their own land so that from the fourth to the sixth century, Ireland acquired the justly deserved title of the Land of Saints and Scholars At length the period arrived when Patrick was to go and enjoy the reward that God had laid in store for him—a reward to which his virtues and sufferings entitled him In reading the life and of St Patrick we find that when he was on his death bed that old Saint raising his eyes to Almighty God said that after all his labors and sufferings he had [illegible] ask for and [illegible] was that Ireland would never lose her faith and that prayer [illegible] and pierced the cloud and entered the courts of heaven [illegible] presence of the Most High and that prayer was taken up by the angels and in the time of their golden harps while the cherubims with golden censers hail it with rapture [illegible] at the presence of the glorious Saint of Ireland his salvation

Fourteen centuries have elapsed [illegible] has [illegible] up since Patrick [illegible] Ireland [illegible] Christianity and [illegible] here is Ireland [illegible] the present [illegible] Christian [illegible] Catholic [illegible] time when St Patrick lived [illegible] nations were enlightened by the [illegible] of Jesus Christ The Apostle [illegible] seeds of Christianity [illegible] enlightened [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Where to day shall we [illegible] Not [illegible] Africa [illegible] Consider [illegible] even the [illegible] we will [illegible] of the past [illegible] the Christian [illegible] its Creator [illegible] [illegible] work and the credit [illegible] Not so however in [illegible] Ireland [illegible] ever so [illegible] not one of the [illegible] but that [illegible] St Patrick Church castle and cabin [illegible] the enemies of our religion and of our race [illegible] through the destruction of the [illegible] the [illegible] of its children, to stamp out the last spark of our faith [illegible] hope vain destruction Though the [illegible] churches may have crumbled into ruin though Heaven the ancient faith still remains Though the great walls of our historic [illegible] have fallen [illegible] the cannon of Cromwell yet the glory of their greatness remains to this day And though the walls of the humble Irish cabin may have been leveled to the dust [illegible] the [illegible] of the tyrant [illegible] [illegible] the spots [illegible] hand of

God has led its inmates it to other lands, there to erect new churches there to build new homes that no tyrant hand or monarch dare assail Still deprived as we have been in the past of our altars our homes our language and our liberty we yet possess after centuries of persecution and exile two precious gifts which no earthly despot can reach, the enduring fire of faith and undying love for Ireland When the spirit of Christianity began to extend its influence in Ireland, then commenced the grandest exodus the Christian world ever witnessed Year after year, decade after decade century after century we behold the emigration of the Irish people who, in obedience to the mandate of God have carried their faith into the ends of the earth In the earliest ages she sent her learned and holy men to carry the light of literature and faith into distant lands whose people sat in the darkness and shadow of death In her riper years she sent her warriors and statesmen to fight the battles and guide the ship of state in every leading nation In her mature age she sent forth her missionaries of the cross by thousands and tens of thousands to preach and practice and teach all nations the faith which fell from the lips of our glorious apostle We are all of us missionaries fellow countrymen every one of us —high or low rich or poor learned or ignorant restless or dull minded—each and every one has a mission to fulfil and a work to perform Yes realize it Every man and woman in this free land of our adoption has a mission has a work We are not sent into this country for nothing, we are not born to run down we are not here that we may go to bed at night get up in the morning toil for our bread eat and drink laugh and joke sin when we have a mind and reform when we are tired of sinning, rear a family and die No God sees every one of us He creates every soul he lodges it in the body one by one for a purpose He needs He deigns to need every one of us He has an end for each of us we are equal in His sight and we are placed in our different ranks and stations not to get what we can out of them for ourselves but to labor in them for Him St Paul on one occasion speaks of the world as a scene in a theater Now consider what is meant by this You know actors on a stage are on an equality with each other really but for the occasion they assume a difference of character some are high some low, some merry and some sad Well would it not be a simple absurdity in any actor to pride himself on his tinsel diadem or his edgeless sword instead of attending to his part? What if he did but gaze at himself? What if he secreted, or turned to his own use what was valuable in it? Is it not his business and nothing else to act his part well? Common sense tells us so Now we are all but actors in this world we are one and all equal will be judged as equals as soon as this life is over yet equal and similar in ourselves each has his special part at present each has his work each has his mission—not to indulge his passions not to make money not to get a name in the world, not to save himself self trouble not to follow his bent not to be selfish and self willed but to perform his mission and do what God puts on him to do Oh, look at that poor profligate in the Gospel who forgot his God and his mission—look at Dives Do you think he understood that his wealth was to be spent not on himself, but for the glory of God? Yet for forgetting this he was lost forever and ever. I will tell you what he thought and how he viewed things He was a young man and had succeeded to a good estate and he determined to enjoy himself It did not strike him that his wealth had any other use than that of enabling him to take his pleasure Lazarus lay at his gate he might have relieved Lazarus that was his mission, his duty that was God's will But he managed to put conscience aside, and he persuaded himself he should be a fool if he did not make the most of his youth while he had the means So he resolved to have his fill of pleasure, and feasting—not fasting—was to his mind a principal part of it He fared sumptuously every day every thing belonging to him was in the best style, as men speak; his house, his furniture his plate of silver and gold his attendants his establishments everything was for enjoyment and for show, too, to attract the eyes of the world and to gain the applause and admiration of his equals who were the companions of his sins These companions were doubtless such as became a person of such pretensions they were fashionable men a collection of refined high toned haughty men, eating not gluttonously, but what was rare and costly delicate, exact fastidious in their taste from their very habits of indulgence not eating for the mere sake of eating or drinking for the mere sake of drinking, but making a sort of science out of their sensuality sensual carnal as flesh and blood can be, with eyes ears tongue steeped in impurity every thought every look and every sense witnessing or ministering to the evil one who ruled them yet with exquisite correctness of idea and judgment laying down rules for sinning heartless and selfish high, punctilious and disdainful in their outward deportment and shrinking from Lazarus who lay at the gate as an eye sore who ought for the sake of decency to be put out of the way Dives was one of them and so he lived his short span thinking of nothing loving nothing but himself the gratification of his passions till one day he got into a fatal quarrel with one of his godless associates or he caught some bad illness and then he lay helpless on his bed of pain cursing fortune and his physician that he was no better and impatient that he was thus kept from enjoying his youth trying to fancy himself mending when he was getting worse and disgusted at those who attended him who would not [illegible] him some word of comfort in his sorrow and misery and turning more resolutely from his Creator in proportion to his sufferings And then at last his end came and he died (miserable) he was buried in hell and so ended he and his mission I repeat it every Irishman though poor his lot and limited his sphere has the field of a missionary in this land if he is true to himself his creed and his country but not to Irishmen alone is the work limited but in this as in all other Christian duties he is aided and encouraged by every Irish maid wife and mother surrounded as they are by the halo of virtue which makes them akin to angels they cast a holy influence around all that pertain to the sanctuary of God Does not such a record hurl back with the power of the bolts of Jove, the slanders and the sneers of those pigmy parasites whose hatred can leave no stain upon the escutcheon of our race No other nation under the sun can point back to such a glorious record as this It is on such an occasion as this that we should look back upon our lives and inwardly ask ourselves have we acted our part well have we even carried out the humble but holy precepts taught us at our mother's knee Distracted as we are by the turmoils of life tossed as we are upon the waves of time engulfed in care and toil and grief such feelings gushing from the heart when we conjure up the memory of our ever beautiful brother make us feel as if that precious moment were [illegible] on the [illegible] of life Though time may have erased from memory the face [illegible] that were near [illegible] though the silent grave may [illegible] all we [illegible] face that never changes there is one form that never fades, the face and form of our dear sainted Mother, Perhaps however the trials of life have spared the hearts of those who have left behind us and [illegible] the shadow of our names [illegible] home still there is [illegible] when on [illegible] the [illegible] the household hearth when our presence will be missed, when the vacant chair will cause the affectionate tear to flow and when [illegible] in [illegible] up [illegible] Irish mother's heart [illegible] Irish mothers [illegible] her children and [illegible] the [illegible] in Ireland to day [illegible] of those we [illegible] hands [illegible] in the breeze with [illegible] except as the national feeling wells up in their hearts as they kneel [illegible] shrine and [illegible] the loved spots here [illegible] with their holiest aspiration

Ireland! Home of my forefathers how my mind expands in [illegible] spirit walks abroad in [illegible] when I contemplate the [illegible] the [illegible] virtues the love purity and piety and religious fidelity of the inhabitants of your green fields and productive mountains! Ireland my country, remarkable in the history of the world for its bravery and misfortune for its credulity in the faith of others for its people judged of the Saxon by the honesty and honor of their own natures! My country celebrated for the sacredness of its shrines and fanes, where the lamp of faith burned with its sacred fire through ages of darkness and storm—that fire which burned before the High Altar without being extinguished being fed continuously, without the slightest interruption and at seems to me not to be an inapt representation of the continuous fidelity and religious love of country of the men of Ireland Yes, my fellow-countrymen you have those high qualities—religious fidelity and continuous love of country—even your enemies admit that the world has never produced any people that excel the Irish in activity strength and generosity The Scottish philosopher has declared and the French philosopher has confirmed it that number one in the human race is blessed by Heaven the Irishman In moral virtue in religion in perseverance and in glorious temperance too you excel

Have we not here our Father Mathew's Society a St. Vincent De Paul an Hibernian Benevolent and although last not least, our Catholic Social Union? All of which societies if working harmoniously, must be productive of much good for the cause of temperance religion and Ireland Yes among the nations of the earth Ireland stands number one in the physical strength of her sons and in the beauty and purity of her daughters Oh what a scene! It is not only the countless thousands of brave and active peaceable and religious men that are there assembled but Nature herself has written her character with the finest beauty in the verdant plains that surround them Let any man scan the horizon with his eye and tell me if created Nature ever produced anything so green and so lovely so undulating so teeming with production! The richest harvests that any land can produce are those realized in Ireland and then here are the sweetest meadows the greenest fields the loftiest mountains the purest streams, the noblest rivers, the most capacious harbors and her water-power is equal to turn the machinery of the whole world Oh my dear fellow countrymen it is a country worth fighting for it is a country worth dying for Home Rule is doing its work slowly but I hope surely Ireland is now being fairly roused to the battle of the country and of freedom

Britain has been often conquered The Romans conquered her the Saxons conquered her the Normans conquered her In short, whenever she was invaded she was conquered She must be invaded again and conquered, once and forever by the Irish But our country was never subdued We never lost our liberties in battle nor did we ever submit to armed conquerors It is true the old inhabitants lost the country in piecemeal by fraud and treachery they relied upon the faith of men who never never observed a treaty with them until a new and mixed race sprung up in dissension and discord But the Irish heart and soul still predominate and pervades the sons of the oppressors—they have become more Irish than the Irish themselves The generosity the native bravery the innate fidelity the enthusiastic love of whatever is great and noble—those splendid characteristics of the Irish mind remain as the imperishable relics of our country's former greatness of that illustrious period when she was the light and glory of barbarous Europe—when the nations around sought for instruction and example in her numerous seminaries and when the civilization and religion of all Europe were preserved in her alone We will fellow-countrymen fight for her if it be the will of God we will die for her for we cannot any longer behold the sad spectacle of our beautiful country trampled upon and outraged Whatever may be my fate, it is the dearest wish of my heart to be there at that time and take a "hand in the liberation of my dear native land And for the present and especially on this day, I feel happy in reviving amongst you the love and admiration of Ireland and calling upon Irishmen and all the friends of liberty—no matter how they may worship their common God—to sacrifice every contemptible prejudice on the altar of their common country Then we will see prosperity in all gradations spreading through a happy contented and religious land Then we will hear the hymn of a happy people go forth at sunrise to God, in praise of His mercies, and we will see the evening sun set down amongst the uplifted hands of a religious and free population That every blessing that man can bestow and religion can confer upon the faithful heart may be spread throughout Ireland is the sincere wish of the humble orator and the end of the oration

A poem was read at the close of the oration by Mr S J McCormick followed with appropriate music by the band

At the conclusion of the exercises, the procession was reformed in front of the Theater and headed by the band marched to the respective halls occupied by the companies, and was disbanded

Capt Jos R. Wiley Marshal of the day deserves the credit of having arranged the procession in a very satisfactory manner, and conducted it throughout the line of march in a creditable manner In this work he was assisted by the following aids Mr John O'Neil of the United Irishmen; Mr. Thos Kearney of the Father Mathew Society and Sergeant J Carr, of the Emmet Guard Lieut Storan assumed temporary command of the Guard in the absence of Capt Wiley

We are gratified to note the fact that throughout the day nothing whatever transpired to mar the occasion or create the least unpleasant feeling among any of the participants but on the contrary everything passed off quietly and pleasantly to all concerned

BALLS

As pleasant a social gathering as we have attended for some time was held last evening at the Emmet Guard Armory Some 40 or 50 couple were present—as many as the quite commodious hall could conveniently accommodate Good music was provided and everything passed off as smoothly as could be desired Dancing was continued until a late hour this morning when the party dispersed

The ball season was virtually brought to a close last evening at Ankeny Hall That popular organization the Hibernian Benevolent Society, gave their annual ball on the occasion We have never seen the hall so crowded as it was last evening Not only was the floor crowded but the seats were filled at the same time From indications there seemed to be no lack of a desire by the lovers of the art terpsichore to give up the fascinating waltz and the many other dances All took part with zest and everything augered well for a continuation of the festivities till a very late hour The ladies were not forgetful of the occasion and almost every one present wore the appropriate color—the green Better music and management could not have been desired by the most fastidious At the usual hour the customary supper was indulged in, and no time was lost to again participate After the midnight hour Irish airs were frequently discoursed, and to that love stirring music the assembly entered into the dances with even warmer spirit than during the early portion of the evening

ABRAHAM LINCOLN

A REMINISCENCE OF THE CLOSE OF THE WAR—A LAST INTERVIEW WITH THE MARTYRED PRESIDENT—BY HENRY WARD BEECHER

In a recent trip to Washington as I walked past the White House I looked up at the window over the entrance long with profound interest It was there that I saw Mr Lincoln for the last time It was between 9 and 10 o'clock in the evening I stood by him in the upper hall and heard him make a speech a few sentences long to a crowd of men who came to present something or other—I forget what I was the only one with him and he closed his few remarks by announcing suddenly that I would make a speech of which I had not the remotest intention But he seemed to enjoy getting me into a scrape from which there was no extrication except by making a few remarks It was near the close of the war, but before the very last campaign if I remember rightly Blair Sr had been South, with the President's leave as a volunteer mediator hoping that in their desperate fortunes the Southern managers might be induced to bring matters to an end Mr Alexander Stevens will well remember the abortive attempts at negotiation which followed But the movement gave no little considerable uneasiness in the North It was feared that the anguished longing for peace might lead the President to consent to terms which would make the cost and suffering of the war less fruitful of liberty and future security than should be I was stirred up to seek an interview with the President by Mr Stanton

Accordingly, on appointment I went about 8 o'clock to the White House and was shown into the reception room at once The whole house was as still as if deserted One servant at the entrance and one at or near the President's room and both half asleep, were the only persons I saw A wood fire had burned itself out on the hearth, only the brands fallen over on either side yet gave any signs of activity

Soon Mr. Lincoln entered in a dressing gown of faded stuff, with his feet in slippers and his head flying wild with hair, each particular hair asserting its own individuality His face was worn, his air that of fatigue, and his greeting that of one who hardly thought of what he was doing

I apologized for adding another visitor, explained the reason of coming and expressed the great uneasiness of his friends as to the meaning and possible results of the negotiations supposed to be going on

Mr Lincoln was sitting with his feet to the hearth, his hands clasped upon his head, the very picture of a man en deshabille; and I was in doubt for a minute whether he had heard me or was not fallen asleep But after a moment's silence he dropped his hands from his head, and turned a little towards me, yet looking into the ashes, as if hesitating to carry out a purpose. In a moment he said

"Well, I've half a mind to show you all the papers."

"If you think it best, Mr President, I should be glad to see them"

He rose and shuffled to his desk, near the door through which he first entered, and took from a pigeon hole a small package of papers, and sitting down by me he opened the mess, for they seemed to be in confusion—a letter or two, a half-written sheet of torn paper, and one or two other things that looked like bills.

"I'm hunting for Blair's commission," he said, which just then he espied It was the smallest size of visiting card say three inches long and a little over an inch wide On it was written, as near as I can remember:

"Pass the bearer through our lines
"A. LINCOLN

This ridiculous little strap, he assured me, was all the commission which Mr. Blair had ever received He said that Blair thought that something might be done, and so the President had no objection to letting him try If anything should come of it, why the Government could then judge what it would then be best to do A considerable conversation then followed, in which he pointed out the situation of affairs just then, and it was while in the midst of the talk that a band was heard approaching and the tramp of feet

He arose and said "I believe there is to be a deputation or something coming, and they expect me to say something Come along" He laid his hand in a kindly way upon my shoulder, as if to keep me from shirking, and went to the front window and addressed a few kind and homely words to the crowd. I bade him good-night, as it turned out, forever I never saw him again —New York Ledger

"HERE'S YOUR 'SUPER,' OLD MAN"—Barney Aaron has demonstrated the usefulness of a pugilist He should have the full credit for the discovery While riding down town in a Fourth avenue street car he discovered on the rear platform Rev Henry Thorpe, of Pittsburg, an elderly clergyman Barney and the clergyman got into conversation, and after talking a little while separated, one being on the opposite side of the platform to the other At Eighteenth street two noted pickpockets, James Henry and William Jackson, got on the car. They are residents of the Fifteenth Ward, and knew Mr Aaron They did not think he would interfere with them, and so proceeded to rob the clergyman. Jackson crowded the minister against the car door, and Henry took his gold watch. They had not calculated on any interference, and were sadly disappointed when Mr. Aaron exercised his science on them with startling results Mr Jackson received a slight testimonial of Mr. Aaron's esteem in the jaw, which tumbled him over the dashboard into the street Mr Henry attempted a feeble resistance, but to no purpose Mr Aaron took the watch, which had been wrung from Henry's hand, and by a manual application sent Henry to join Jackson After arranging his disturbed sealskin coat Mr Aaron handed the recovered watch to Rev Mr Thorpe, remarking, "Here's your 'super,' old man Don't you never stand on a car platform again You're the worst old sucker I've met in a year" After his exploit Mr Aaron is said to have looked very refined and virtuous —Elmira Advertiser

END OF A SUIT TO RECOVER DAMAGES FOR A MURDER—It will be readily recalled by the readers of the Times that after the conviction of Foster, for the murder of Avery D Putnam, the widow of the latter commenced a suit in the Superior Court to recover $5,000 damages against the Broadway and Seventh Avenue Railroad Company. The suit was based on the theory that the company was responsible for the alleged neglect of the conductor in not having put Foster off the car when his intoxicated condition became apparent On the trial Mrs Putnam recovered judgment for the full amount claimed that being the limit permitted by law in case of death, and an appeal being taken to the General Term, the judgment was confirmed, by a majority of the court Chief Justice Barbour dissenting On an appeal being taken to the Court of Appeals the judgment of the court below was reversed, Judge Allen who delivered the opinion of the court, holding that the evidence produced on the trial failed to show negligence on the part of the conductor of the car Inasmuch as this decision has declared against Mrs Putman's right to recover, she has now discontinued her suit, such discontinuance being without costs to either party as against the other—N Y Times, Feb. 10

Our plan would be to issue additional currency This would be exactly equivalent to Mr Dawes plan except that the currency would be non interest bearing and would be confined as a loan to our own citizens A debt is a debt, no matter whether in the form of currency that can be used in the country as a circulating medium or in the form of interest bearing bonds that can be negotiated abroad. In the one case it costs the Government nothing after its issue for interest in the other it does Thus the interests of the country and the Treasury alike demand that there shall be a large supply of circulating medium We hope it will prove true as intimated that Congress will without unnecessary delay, meet the wishes of the country in this particular.

Mr Dawes in presenting the plan referred to, makes out that the Treasury will be almost empty at the end of this fiscal year by supposing that all the coin certificates and all the certificates of deposit of greenbacks are to be presented for redemption and that nearly all appropriations past present and to come are to be called for within this year Mr Dawes probably thinks he is going to work a good economical effect by this panic showing but a rational view of his figures judging by experience and probabilities can show that there will be a balance in the Treasury at the end of the year not greatly short of that at the beginning and sufficient for working purposes Economy is well but it is not well for a member intrusted with the leading position in financial legislation to make a fallacious exhibit calculated to strike the public credit

Trade East of the Mountains.

Of late years much of the trade which Portland once enjoyed with Eastern Oregon Idaho and Washington Territory has been turned from her and those sections receive a large portion of their imports via the overland railroad route The transportation in that direction is difficult and the merchants are often at great trouble and expense in procuring it when most needed and they are making some investigations in the matter the results of which may be beneficial to the trade of our city.

Mr W J Snodgrass of Oro Dell Oregon writes to D Falk & Bro of Boise City in regard to transportation from the Columbia river, as follows

MESSRS FALK & BROS—Gentlemen I have been for nearly a year, trying to make some arrangements with the O S N Co, and with the toll roads that you could bring your goods over this road cheaper than from the U P road I think I have succeeded in making about all the arrangements necessary and should be pleased to hear from you and learn what you think of the project There will be an opposition on from San Francisco to Portland which will enable us to get goods to Portland for about $7 per ton, from Portland to Umatilla for one cent per pound and from Umatilla to Boise for about three cents making in all as follows

San Francisco to Portland per ton	$ 7
Drayage at Portland	1
Portland to Umatilla	20
Drayage and forwarding at Umatilla	[illegible]
Umatilla to Boise	60
Total per ton	$87

or about 4½ cents per pound actual weight There are a great many articles you can buy in Portland cheaper than any place else viz rice tea dried apples plums Island sugar etc If there is any probability that your folks will turn your attention this way I will pay you a visit and talk this matter over with you Please see your brother merchants and write me what you think of the matter

Home Produce Market.

WHEAT—The market is gradually working down to barren condition as far as transactions are concerned, and with the advent of spring like weather the receipts will likely fall off to a merely nominal figure. Exporters are now comparatively idle having no more ships chartered than are required to carry off the surplus of prior purchases. We find to day that no change in prices has taken place, the offers being firm at $1 60 ₩ cental

FLOUR—With very fair receipts the supply accumulating in the market is larger but prices are firm for extra of standard brands which are quotable at $5 ₩ bbl while good outside brands command 1 00c ₩ bbl less Superfine is in fair demand for shipping at $4 00

OATS—The trade is quite lively for the season and with no change in quotations it is remarked that all offering are accepted at 1c, but half which is the current rate for good

BARLEY—We notice limited receipts which are disposed of freely to supply the local trade at $1 1 ₩ 100 lbs

FEED—Stocks are ample at $11 ₩ ton for bran $ 5 0 for shorts, and $2 @ 7 50 for chops middlings etc The approach of spring is likely to depress prices in a few weeks But few shipment are made

HAY—The market is fairly supplied at slightly reduced rates For good baled timothy we quote at $14 ₩ ton loose do, $12 @13

POTATOES—The demand is still brisk both for shipping and the home trade Some shipments made on the last steamer but one to San Francisco met with fair sale

BUTTER—A common article is plentiful at prices ranging from 1 to 15c ₩ lb while a first rate article is quotable at 30c and receipts of California butter by last steamer sold for 40 a 42½c ₩ lb while Oregon butter is quoted in the San Francisco market at 22½c ₩ lb—an anomalous condition in the two markets which reflects no credit on our State

CHEESE—Oregon made is scarce and commands an advance on quotations last given Receipts are now held at 18a20c ₩ lb

BACON—We note no important change the demand being dull at 1c a ₩ lb for shoulders 10 11c for sides and 15c for hams

LARD—The week opens with an active demand for warranted lots at 13c ₩ lb in kegs and [illegible] in tins

DRIED FRUIT—A slight advance is [illegible] and good lots of apples in barrels are quotable at [illegible] in sacks 6c ₩ lb

EGGS—The supply is in excess of the local demand while there is no call for shipping We quote our market dull at 16a18c per doz

CHICKENS—The receipts and demand are well balanced and best lots are quotable at [illegible] common $3 per dozen
